JUSTICE AND MERCY

The worlds of politics and entertainment were rocked this past week when it was announced that no further indictments would be sought according to the Mueller report, and that all charges against Jussie Smollet were dropped. Media hysteria broke out with cries of “Foul!” “How can there be no charges?” Commentator after commentator lamented the lack of justice regardless of the case they were talking about.

We can readily see how easy it is for emotions to run hot and for opinions to guide our thinking when the focus of attention is on someone else. I wonder if we would be so quick to accuse and demand justice if we were the principle subjects in such an investigation.

One might say that we are under investigation. As Christians, we are under a lot of worldly scrutiny and each time we publicly sin (including social media), the court of popular opinion comes down hard. Many times, this public-opinion court makes outrageous statements out of bias or ignorance and it is not fair, but this is why we need to go the extra mile and not give the world unneeded ammunition.

Someday we will stand before a righteous tribunal to give an accounting of our activities (2 Cor. 5:10), our words and even our thoughts. There will be no collusion, no paid-for witnesses, no white/black privilege, no federally protected minorities, and no appeals to a higher court. It will be our lives, the word of God (John 12:48), and the Judge of all the earth (Gen. 18:25). Is it a comfort to know that there will be no chance of receiving an errant verdict? Are you glad to know the final decision will be the right one?

We can cry “Foul!” over a lack of justice here on earth, but we need to recognize that Jesus shed His blood on the cross that our sins might be covered so we could claim the mercy of God and be spared from the just wages of our sin—JK.
