No More Excuses

Excuses are easy to make, but they do not remove our responsibility before God. When Moses was called to lead Israel, he offered several excuses: "Who am I?" "What shall I say?" and "I am slow of speech" (Exodus 3:11, 13; 4:10). Yet God patiently reminded Moses that His power was sufficient. Jesus also warned about those who make excuses when invited to follow Him. One wanted to examine his land, another wanted to test his oxen, and another allowed family matters to keep him from responding (Luke 14:16–24). Their excuses may have sounded reasonable, but they caused them to miss the great supper.

People still make excuses today: "I am too busy to worship," "I will obey the gospel later," "I am not good enough," or "Someone at church hurt me." However, none of these excuses changes what God has commanded.

Jesus said, "If you love Me, you will keep My commandments" (John 14:15). God does not expect perfection before we come to Him, but He does expect faith, repentance, obedience, and faithfulness. Instead of asking, "What excuse can I give?" we should ask, "What would the Lord have me do?"
